Colorado:

The District Attorney's Office held a public resource fair. The office coordinated with nine other agencies to be present, including the victim advocacy units from local law enforcement, domestic violence agencies, a sexual assault crisis agency/advocacy center, a child advocacy agency, and a local art museum that assisted with the art project. The art project included cards for people to fill out, either about how they were helped on one side or how they would help on the other. The cards were available at the events on both days of the event. Partner agencies were given some to fill out at their location and encouraged to bring them to the event on the 25th. From April 22-26, the office provided ribbons and pins for staff to wear each day. Everyone present was invited to participate in writing about how they were helped and how they would help with the notecards created for the event. Bags and pins were distributed at the event. CAP funds offset event expenses, including bags, pins, tissues, ribbons, and the location rental.

North Carolina:

A digital billboard displaying two ads was purchased for most of April to advertise Victim's Rights Week and the event on April 25th. During Victim's Rights Week, the Crime Victim Advocates held three separate information sessions around Cleveland County. These sessions were used to help communicate services available to victims, along with advertising Victim's Rights Week and the big event held on April 25th. On the day of the event, they had a community resource fair. Participants such as a dog therapy team, Abuse Prevention Council, and others had information tables regarding the services they provide to victims of crime. CAP funds were used to purchase a banner, digital billboard, car magnets, yard signs, survivor storyboard supplies, and media advertisements.
